1. Introduction

On October 4, Brazilians went to the polls for the first round of the 2026 General Elections. Voters cast their ballots for president of the Republic, governors, senators, and federal, state, and district representatives.

This report provides an overview of the first-round results, highlighting the presidential race, elected governors, states heading to a runoff, and elected senators.

The information is organized by state and the Federal District, providing an overview of the electoral landscape following the first round of voting.
